DETAILED ACTION

This is a reply to the Applicant's amendment submitted on 12/11/2003. According to this amendment, claims 1-10 are withdrawn; claims 15-17 are canceled; thus, claims 11-14 are now presented in this instant application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000.

Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claim 14 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Fischer (U.S. Pub. No. 2002/0067195).

With respect to claim 14, Fischer discloses, in Figures 1 and 2a-b, and paragraphs [0014], [0019] and [0020], a phase shifter for producing an output signal comprising a circuit for receiving an input signal [10] having a phase and for producing an output [40] having a phase; the circuit designed for changing a phase regulation direction of the phase shifter at predetermined switching points based on an input signal ([0014], [0019], [0020]), the changing over of the phase regulation direction being performed with a hysteresis behavior.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Drost et al. in view of Fischer (U.S. Pub. No. 2002/0067195).

With respect to claims 11-12 and corresponding method claim 13, Drost et al. discloses a control loop, in combination with a delay locked loop circuit, comprising a) a phase shifter [230] for producing an output [intclk] with a first clock phase, b) phase detector [210] for detecting a phase difference between a second clock phase of a data signal and the first clock phase, the phase detector producing an output signal based on the detected phase difference; c) a charge pump [220] for integrating the output signal of the phase detector, the charge pump producing a regulation signal for the phase shifter.

Drost et al. fails to disclose that the phase shifter changing over a phase regulation direction at predetermined switching points based on regulation signal; the changing over of the phase regulation direction being performed with a hysteresis behavior.

Fischer discloses, in Figures 1 and 2a-b, and paragraphs [0014], [0019] and [0020], a phase shifter for producing an output signal comprising a circuit for receiving an input signal [10] having a phase and for producing an output [40] having a phase; the circuit designed for changing a phase regulation direction of the phase shifter at predetermined switching points based on an input signal ([0014], [0019], [0020]), the changing over of the phase regulation direction being performed with a hysteresis behavior.

To configure the control loop of Drost et al. with a phase shifter as taught by Fischer for adjusting the phase of an output signal while maintaining the symmetry of the input signal would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention since Fischer's phase shifter is capable of producing an output signal shifted in phase from the input signal with the same duty cycle as the input signal (see Fischer, [0001] and [0004]).

Remarks and Conclusion

5. With respect to claims 11-13, the allowability stated in the previous office action has been withdrawn due to newly found prior arts to Drost et al. and Fischer.
